

Your Alaska Pediatric Surgery Team

At Alaska Pediatric Surgery we have a team to help your child and your family through the surgery process. This means that you may see one or many of us through the process of your visit to our clinic, the day of surgery, time in the hospital and follow up afterwards. That is a lot of opportunities to meet someone different, so we wanted you to know who you may meet along the journey.

Dr. Brent Roaten

Dr. Monja Proctor

Dr. Jarod McAteer

Betsy Taylor, PA-C

Sean Walsh, PA-C

Jessica Anderson PA-C

Linda Carleton, RN

Susi Meunier

Kristi Davis

Did You Know?

- Dr. Roaten originally studied archeology in college.
- Dr. Proctor doesn't have a middle name.
- Dr. McAteer plays guitar and banjo. He will play anywhere anytime!
- Susi had a pet monkey when she was a kid.
- Sean played baseball as a kid and only got on base once- when he was struck with the ball.

- Kristi wanted to be a marine biologist when she was younger. Then she realized that she is deathly afraid of being in the ocean.
- Jessica's most memorable show and tell was a gigantic goose egg she found in first grade.
- Betsy was once chased by a yearling moose in the Providence hospital parking lot.

- Jessica loves to fish. Salmon fishing is her favorite.
- Linda was married on the Ruth Glacier, pretty darn Alaskan there.
- Betsy dropped calculus in high school. She promptly looked for something to do with her life unrelated to math.
- Kristi grew up in Fairbanks and lived in the same house until she left for college.
- Sean has ridden the World's Longest Outdoor Escalator- in Hong Kong. He did not get a t-shirt and regrets it to this day.

- Betsy played rugby in college.
- Sean had nine dogs growing up.
- Dr. Roaten attempted a climb of Denali, but was weathered out right before he reached the top.
- Jessica ran track and did cheerleading in high school.
- When Linda was five she wanted to be a race car driver.

- Dr. Proctor almost walked right into a moose walking into the hospital.
- There is a street named after Susi in Fairbanks.
- Kristi has been bungee jumping and skydiving.
- Dr. McAteer lives and breathes Denver Broncos Football and saw John Elway's last home game in person.