

Hutchison Group President Speaks at Cornell University

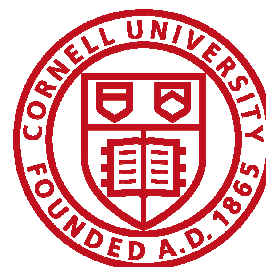

Meets with Iberdrola Corporation to Discuss How to Prepare for and Secure Competitive Labor Agreements

May 2012 - It was announced today that Cameron Hutchison, president and founder of Hutchison Group, Inc. has been invited to speak at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY, to address a conference on labor relations sponsored by Iberdrola USA.

A conference spokesperson stated that "the purpose of the conference is to get various perspectives on how to improve ongoing Labor Relations and discuss how best to prepare for securing future labor agreements that will help position companies to effectively compete within their respective markets. Given Mr. Hutchison's extensive experience with successfully restructuring traditional labor agreements, his insights and recommendations are anticipated to be very instructive. In particular, there is a great deal of interest regarding Mr. Hutchison's success in creating more flexible and productive work environments, eliminating many restrictive work rules that often hinder performance."

Commenting on his upcoming presentation, Hutchison said, "I am very honored to be invited to speak at Cornell and attend the Iberdrola Labor Relations conference. Events such as these present an excellent opportunity to exchange ideas that can be used to improve working relationships with management, employees, and union leaders; leading to the development of "win-win" solutions and labor agreements that will benefit all parties."
