TRAINING

IDS'S MILITARY TRAINING IS A COMPLEX COMBINATION OF MISSION, INNOVATION, AND EXECUTION – ALL IN CONSTANT MOTION

IDS is the U.S. Government's leading training partner in whole-of-government approaches and training on stability operations, capability building, disaster response, humanitarian assistance, and reconstruction. Our curriculum is informed by the collective experience of our seasoned cadre of experts - professionals with recent US military, State Department, USAID, CIA, INL, UN, non-governmental or other experience in conflict or disaster zones.

IDS prepares warfighters for the situations and domains they encounter in real world battlefields. Civilian, political, diplomatic, and humanitarian challenges they will face during military conflict. Our approach exposes warfighters to the wider, strategic issues that drive conflict and tactics to successfully resolving it.

From our origins performing technical and training missions throughout the Army Combat Training Centers, to current Global Peace Operation Initiative work in Africa, IDS's reputation for providing innovative training solutions to our customers, is second to none.

When the U.S. Special Forces and USAID designed the village stability operation concept, they asked IDS to stand up the program at the Joint Readiness Training Center. At the National Training Center, IDS trained forces at every rotation for over 12 years. Our Cyber & Information Warfare division, comprised primarily of former Special Forces operators, developed a replicated cyber range, the only system capable of training on both offensive and defensive cyber.

IDS prepares military forces for today's complex and unpredictable operational environments, while ensuring they have the tools and critical thinking required to stay a step ahead of opposing forces.

Adversaries train on weakness. IDS levels the battlefield.
